

Despite her undeniable success on TV, Taylor still stays true to her modeling roots and highlighting the parallel that beauty really is "stone deep". Niki Taylor will be shocking South Florida with her beauty in a new ad campaign for Opustone Natural Stone Distributors, Florida's exclusive importer and distributor of the finest travertine, marble, granite, quartzite, onyx, limestone, coral and unique stones.

The natural stone distributor is making stone super sexy with Taylor as the face of the company's latest print advertising campaign.

"Niki Taylor is one of the most natural beauties to ever grace the pages of magazines and runways," said Eric Schigiel, President and Co-Founder / Owner of Opustone Natural Distributors. "She has a timeless appeal of elegance and warmth, and a classic style that makes her overall look seem effortless. Combine that with her vivacious attitude and passion for family, she was the perfect talent to help highlight the beauty and functionality of Opustone's products. Natural stone has a unique beauty, as does Niki – it's a perfect union. We are thrilled to have her as part of the Opustone team and as the face of our latest advertising campaign."

The campaign will feature Taylor in a variety of print advertisements with various Opustone products. Taylor will highlight the beauty and functionality of Opustone products.

The Opustone Concept Gallery is open to the public and the new location, located in the Design District at 4100 North Miami Ave, in Miami, features a boutique showroom that showcases a sampling of the finest natural stone products and accessories that Opustone has to offer.
